

Eric Topcu joins Champion Chiropractic Centre.

It was sad to lose David Oxenham back to his native Queensland, but we are fortunate to have such a dynamic and caring replacement in Eric Topcu. Here's a bit about Eric.....

Eric has been involved in high level sports from a young age. In his youth he played both representative tennis and amateur football in Sydney. He excelled at school and in his later years of high school developed an enormous interest in the workings of the human body.

Eric was introduced to Gonstead Chiropractic after a worrying trip home from a school camp. He had injured his back and could not even stand on his feet. He was prescribed bed rest and pain medication. Reluctantly after 3 days bed-ridden Eric was taken from bed to his father's Chiropractor. During his visit with the chiropractor it became immediately apparent to the teenager that this was something very special. He was back to his intense sporting routine in under a week. Without knowing it at the time he had committed, subconsciously, to providing the same excellence in care for others as soon as he was able.

Eric completed his 5 year chiropractic study program at Macquarie University in the top group of his class; earning scholarships along the way. While he was tempted to pursue an academic career his desire to be working personally with babies, mums, dads, athletes and the elderly alike guided him from university study directly into private practice.

Eric accepted a position in a busy practice in Cairns in his first year after graduation and then travelled to Europe to gain as much chiropractic experience as possible working in practices in England, Scotland and Denmark.

We are very pleased to welcome Eric into Champion Chiropractic Centre. Eric is excited about settling down and enjoying the Central Coast with his young family and in providing excellent chiropractic care for the patients and families of Champion Chiropractic Centre.
